On November 6th, 2012 elections will be held for all 435 seats in the U.S. House of Representatives, one-third of the Senate and the President of the United States. Once again, the country is in the midst of a historic campaign season that has seen the dynamics of electoral politics shaped not only by a dramatic series of global events and economic pressures, but also what seem to be nearly irreconcilable domestic policy divisions between Congress and the White House.

As the nation heads toward the ballot box this fall, the pace of the economic recovery, the looming expiration of tax cuts, and impending mandated spending reductions will be on the minds of every voter. How our elected officials respond to these challenges in an era marked by new alignments in priorities will certainly have an impact on the federal role for arts and culture.

Despite evidence that the arts generate economic activity, fuel innovation, and enrich communities, Congress funds the arts through the National Endowment for the Arts at a mere 47 cents per capita. This funding represents just 0.028 percent of non-military discretionary funding (see chart 1). As our leaders look to make the hard choices regarding the best use of limited federal resources, pro-arts voters have an opportunity to support candidates that understand the value of investment in the creative community.

Americans for the Arts Act Fund PAC has prepared the 2012 Congressional Arts Report Card as a one-stop guide that allows us and all stakeholders with an interest in the arts to make informed decisions at the ballot box. It contains metrics and analysis based on official congressional voting records, sponsorship of key arts legislation, and participation in the cultural caucuses.

CONGRESSIONAL LEGISLATIVE RECAP: A TALE OF TWO AMENDMENTS

NEA Appropriations History Fiscal Years 1966 to 2012

CONGRESSIONAL LEGISLATIVE RECAP:

A TALE OF TWO AMENDMENTS

The 112th Session of Congress inherited significant funding decisions due to the previous Congress's inability to come to consensus. So funding for the arts faced numerous challenges as power was transferred from the Democrats to the Republicans in the House of Representatives.

Two floor amendments sponsored by Representative Tim Walberg (R-MI) sought to cut funding for the National Endowment for the Arts (NEA) and the National Endowment for the Humanities (NEH). The first amendment occurred during a February 2011 debate on a Continuing Resolution (CR) to fund FY 2011 programs and contained a $20 million dollar cut to the NEA budget that was already reduced by the base funding legislation. Although this amendment passed the House by a narrow margin, this version of the CR ultimately failed in the Senate, opening up negotiations for another stop gap piece of legislation. Congress eventually passed another CR in April 2011, which funded the NEA at $155 million for FY 2011 —down from the high of $167.5 million.

THE 2ND WALBERG AMENDMENT

Rep. Walberg's second attempt to reduce funding for the NEA/NEH was a $10 million cut to the agencies after they had already been drastically decreased by $20 million in the House Interior bill's initial FY 2012 funding proposal. The defeat of the second Walberg Amendment was made possible in part by the action of grassroots advocates who vigorously engaged their members of Congress during the deliberations of the FY 2012 Interior Appropriations bill. Advocates sent nearly 20,000 messages through the Americans for the Arts Action Fund E-Advocacy Center in opposition to the proposed NEA cuts, resulting in the defeat of the Walberg Amendment 181-240-1. Most impressively, 55 Republican House Members joined all their voting Democratic colleagues in opposition to the amendment, a change of more than 30 votes from the first Walberg amendment vote in February.

The bill that contained the amendment was ultimately pulled from the House floor and left unfinished. In December 2011, Congress finally completed FY 2012 appropriations by passing an omnibus resolution which funded the NEA at $146.3 million, identical to the President's proposed budget. The omnibus was necessary because the regular appropriations process was stalled due to partisan disagreement.

TIMELINE

- February 2011—House appropriations subcommittee proposes $145 million for NEA in FY 2011 legislation.
- February 17, 2011 — Rep. Walberg proposes an additional $20 million cut for the NEA/NEH.
- April 12, 2011—Congress passes long-term CR agreement that funds NEA/NEH at $155 million for FY 2011.
- July 7, 2011 — House appropriations subcommittee proposes $135 million for NEA in FY 2012 legislation
- July 28, 2011—Rep. Walberg floor amendment to cut an addition $10.6 million fails.
- December 17, 2011—Congress passes an omnibus appropriations package that funded the NEA/NEH at $146.3 million for FY 2012.
- February 13, 2012—President Obama proposed an increase for the NEA/NEH to $154.2 million for FY 2013.

CONGRESSIONAL ARTS CAUCUS

The bipartisan nature of the House Congressional Arts Caucus (CAC) is indicated not only by the leadership of the caucus, but in its membership. The CAC was crucial in staving off damaging budget reductions to the NEA during the consideration of the Interior Appropriations FY 2012 bill, when Rep. Tim Walberg (R-MI) offered his floor amendment that would have reduced funding for the NEA/NEH by an additional $10.6 million. Members of the Congressional Arts Caucus opposing the amendment included Subcommittee Chairman Mike Simpson (R-ID); Ranking Member Jim Moran (D-VA); Congressional Arts Caucus Co-Chair Rep. Louise Slaughter (D-NY); and six other members of Congress, including Reps. Bobby Scott (D-VA) and David Cicilline (D-RI). Due in part to the urging from Representative Simpson and Congressional Arts Caucus Co-Chair Todd Platts (R-PA) on the House floor, 32 Republicans who had previously supported Walberg's amendment in February voted it down.

The CAC remains the most important congressional organizing resource in advancing pro-arts policies in Congress and is also one of the largest caucuses in the House. As the official congressional cosponsor of Arts Advocacy day, the CAC members and their staffs are consistently relied upon to not only support arts and cultural on the House floor or in the relevant committees, but also to disseminate information on the latest research and best practices of the nonprofit creative sector. Through providing unique forums for special staff briefings, using social media such as the CAC Facebook page, and an upcoming official website, the CAC continues to be an invaluable bipartisan partner for the nonprofit arts and an important ally for preserving the federal role for culture.

THE GRADING SYSTEM:

THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

House Members received grades based on:

- Two major votes on arts funding (40 points each)
- Membership in the Congressional Arts Caucus (10 points)
- Signatures on “Dear Colleague” letters to the Appropriations Committee, asking for an increase in funding for the NEA (3 points each)
- Introduction or co-sponsorship of pro arts-related legislation (2 points each)
- Additionally, bonus points for pro-arts activities/positions not directly related to voting records and legislative support or outstanding pro-arts leadership and reversing position on the Walberg vote (10 points)

Members’ “grades” are primarily based on the two major 2011 votes that were directly related to funding for the NEA. This is reflected in the assignment of 40 points each for those pivotal votes around the previously discussed Walberg amendments.

In general, members with perfect or near-perfect records got an A+ or A. Those who voted the pro-arts position on the two major votes received an A or better. B+ or B grades largely reflect a rejection of one of the major arts funding reduction votes with bonus points added to those members that changed their vote to the pro-arts position after previously voting for funding cuts.

At the lowest end of the grading spectrum, those who voted consistently against the arts and who took few, if any, other positive actions received grades of D or F. A few members received bonus points for outstanding leadership, as explained in the footnotes. We also modified the grade scale for members who came into office part-way through a term, vacant seats and for the Speaker of the House, who traditionally does not vote.

Finally, we acknowledge that a few members with poor or fair voting records were supportive behind the scenes. We also recognize that some members missed important votes for reasons that may have been beyond their control or believe that their committee assignments restrict them from signing letters of support or co-sponsoring legislation before that committee. We have tried to accommodate such conflicts by assigning leadership points for pro-arts support that is somewhat less visible than voting records and legislative initiatives that are part of the public record. For those delegates who are not able to vote on legislation, we do not assign grades but instead publish measures of arts support for reference purposes only.

This Congressional Arts Report Card is as accurate as we can make it, but like any grading system, it cannot reflect all aspects of each member’s performance. We encourage readers to be in touch with their own members’ offices if they have unanswered questions about their members’ records.

Members of Congress demonstrate arts support in various capacities not captured by voting records or caucus membership. Below shows a number of Representatives whose leadership and support was deserving of recognition:

- Rep. Wally Herger (R-CA) is one of the lead cosponsors of the IRA Charitable Rollover Act of 2011. The rollover is a vital incentive for private support for the nonprofit arts sector.
- Reps. Rush Holt (D-NJ) and Susan Davis (D-CA) introduced an amendment in the Education and Workforce Committee that would have preserved arts education activities during consideration of a bill that struck Arts in Education programs at the U.S. Department of Education.
- Reps. Paul Tonko (D-NY) and Leonard Lance (R-NJ) authored the FY 2012 and FY 2013 Dear Colleague letter supporting funding for the Office of Museum Services at the Institute of Museum & Library Services (IMLS).
- Reps. Marsha Blackburn (R-TN) and Daniel Lungren (R-CA) provided leadership on improving the visa process for visiting artists. Rep. Blackburn also met with musicians Ben Folds and Clay Walker on Arts Advocacy Day to discuss arts funding.

SENATE LEGISLATIVE RECAP

Aside from the confusing appropriations process described previously, there was little progress made in Congress on policy issues pertaining to the arts. In fall 2011 the Senate education committee successfully completed consideration of a bill to reauthorize the nation's elementary and secondary education programs, but floor consideration to complete the Senate bill did not take place in 2012. This legislation includes provisions that could be strengthened to support arts learning.

The Senate did take action on a short two-year reauthorization of the nation's surface transportation programs. Through a series of compromises between Senate Environment & Public Work Committee Chairman Barbara Boxer (D-CA), Ranking Member Jim Inhofe (R-OK) and House transportation leaders, eligibility for federal funds to support public art and transportation museums was terminated. In place for decades, the Transportation Enhancement and similar Transit Enhancement programs were significantly altered and funding was cut by more than one-third despite the advocacy efforts of the biking, preservation, environmental and cultural sectors.

THE GRADING SYSTEM: U.S. SENATE

For the 2011-12 Senate session, there were not enough votes to provide a grade. For reference purposes only, we have included the 2010 Report Card grade for members of the 2012 Senate, when applicable, and have also included three more recent pro-arts actions that took place during the current Congress as well as updated the Senate Cultural Caucus membership list.

We have also identified below a number of Senators whose leadership and support was deserving of recognition.

- Sens. Claire McCaskill (D-MO) and Sheldon Whitehouse (D-RI) both serve as ex-officio members of the National Council on the Arts, the advisory committee to the National Endowment on the Arts. Sen. Whitehouse received the Americans for the Arts Congressional Arts Leadership award in 2011.
- Sen. Tom Udall (D-NM) authored Dear Colleague letters in 2011 and 2012 in support of funding for the National Endowment for the Arts.
- Sen. Orrin Hatch (R-UT) sponsored S.2212, the Foreign Cultural Exchange Jurisdictional Immunity Clarification Act, which extends legal protections for exhibition art from overseas. Sen. Hatch also spoke very supportively of the value of the nonprofit arts sector at a Senate Finance Committee hearing (10/17/11) on tax incentives for charitable giving.
- Sen. Robert Casey (D-PA) successfully included an amendment to the Elementary & Secondary Education Act reauthorization bill under consideration by the Senate education committee that would support a “well-rounded curriculum” including the arts.
- Sen. Tom Harkin (D-IA), chairman of the Senate Appropriations Labor, Health and Education Subcommittee and Sen. Thad Cochran (R-MS) have shown specific support for the U.S. Department of Education's Arts in Education program through the FY 2011 and FY 2012 appropriations bills. Chairman Harkin also supported funding for the Fast Response Survey System study in Arts Education that was released by the U.S. Department of Education in April 2012.
- Sen. Kirsten Gillibrand (D-NY) authored a Dear Colleague in support of funding for the Office of Museum Services at the Institute of Museum & Library Services (IMLS).
- Senate Interior Appropriations Subcommittee chairman Jack Reed (D-RI) and Ranking Member Lisa Murkowski (R-AK) provided a significantly higher level of support in their mark for the National Endowment for the Arts by approving $155 million in the FY 2012 committee bill.

SENATE CULTURAL CAUCUS

The Senate Cultural Caucus is co-chaired by Sens. Mike Enzi (R-WY) and Barbara Mikulski (D-MD). The Cultural Caucus now has 37 members. Its role is to showcase the importance of the arts and the humanities.
